He accompanied the health commissioner to the Broll home [illegible] afternoon where after making numerous tests he pronounced the disease as infantile paralysis. The girl's right leg, [illegible] paralyzed from the hip down, although she had recovered entirely from the illness accompanying the disease.

Most Serious Case

Dr Bolhus also visited the John M Scher home on Glover ave where John Jr, the seven year old son is suffering from paralysis in both legs as the result of the disease. The Mosher case was the most severe of the seven cases reported. While the child has recovered entirely from the illness accompanying the disease both legs remain paralyzed although he is able to turn his legs from side to side. Last week there would be no further recovery from the paralysis was indicated by the physician.

A lull in the disease following the report of the first four cases lead the local health officials to believe the disease had run its course in the city. This however proved to be false and the health commissioner and all physicians are urging that parents take every known means to prevent further spread of the disease. They are asking that every case of illness no matter how mild be reported to a physician at once.

HEALTH AUTHORITIES' ACTION IS PRAISED

U. S. Surgeon General Issues Statement Following Ohio Quarantine

Washington Aug 30—The action of the health authorities in issuing a quarantine order prohibiting the assemblage under 18 years of age from all public places and public meetings in Franklin County Ohio because of prevalence of infantile paralysis was praised today by Hugh S Cumming surgeon general of the United States public Health Service.

I cannot too warmly commend the action taken by the authorities for taking the step in view of the seriousness of the situation said Cumming.

The cancellation by Dr Monger Ohio state Health Officer of a baby show in connection with the Ohio State Fair was also approved by Cumming.

The fact that 1,000 had been entered in the show might have brought about a dangerous situation if it had been permitted to go on," Cumming said.

A warning posted on the entrance of infantile paralysis quarantine gates was essential until the ban has been passed.

Meeker School Will Open Sept. 12 With Instructors Taking Chance on Wages

Teachers, Bus Drivers and Janitor Insure First Semester by Volunteering To Serve in Hope of Receiving Salaries When Levy Passes

Meeker centralized school [illegible] system [illegible] for the past several years and which because of the [illegible] funds was not scheduled to start before Jan 1, will open on Sept 12 it was announced yesterday by County Superintendent C B Rayburn.

The school will open with little money but lots of faith the county superintendent said. Realizing that the financial problem of the [illegible] was a serious one Rayburn sought a solution from which it evolved that the school can and will open if the teachers drivers of the school trucks and even the janitor [illegible] themselves into the breach with the result that the school will open next month.

As stated by Mr Rayburn the school will open on Feb 1. The janitor has volunteered to work until the first of the year without pay as have the bus drivers of the school trucks. They are to [illegible] work until the first of the year with a few pleas, their faith in the [illegible] of the three mill [illegible] which has been the bone of contention since the levy was overwhelmingly defeated by the voters of the district.

Start of Trouble

The start of this trouble [illegible] at the completion of the [illegible] building when it was discovered that additional money will be needed [illegible] finance the operation. An attempt [illegible] an attempt to pass the three mill levy on additional levy granted [illegible] for operating purposes, met with defeat.

Bonds were sold to meet the deficiency. How became an added burden which sets up a huge part of the school fund received by the school from the tax levy. This year the matter came to a crisis when it became evident that there would not be enough money to operate the school until the first of the year when money could be borrowed in anticipation of the March tax settlement.

An attempt to submit funds by popular subscription in order that the school might open in September met with only half hearted success and was finally abandoned when it became apparent that not enough money could be obtained to finance the school until the first of the year. It was then that the employes of the school and the staff of teachers saved the situation.

All county schools with the exception of Richland, will open on Sept 6, County Superintendent Rayburn announced today. Richland which has only an eight month term will not open until Sept 12.

Munich Aug 30 With the same [illegible] and mechanical precautions that has marked their record breaking flight thus far Edward F Schlee and William Brock left here at 6:37 o'clock this morning for Constantinople on the third lap of their conquest of the world by air.

The Pride of Detroit the gilded monoplane which carried the fliers on this accident era from Newfoundland in two hops made a perfect getaway from the Oberwiesenfeld Riem Field. After circling the airport once the [illegible] plane soared into the sky toward its goal a distance of 1,410 miles.

Fliers Up Early

Brock and Schlee arrived at the flying field at 4 o'clock. Both declared they had slept extraordinary well and declared this due to the beneficient effects of a quantity of Munich's famous beer they had consumed before retiring last night.

The fliers tuned up the motor of the Pride of Detroit and after a brief inspection declared it in perfect condition. A lunch was packed the fliers climbe [illegible] the cockpit and the plane was off hardly 25 minutes after Brock and Schlee had appeared at the field.

The fliers explained they would halt at Belgrade about noon only if the weather was poor, otherwise they planned to rush ahead for the Turkish city arriving in the neighborhood of 6 o'clock this evening.

Honored At Dinner

The Detroit fliers were signally honored last night when a dinner was tendered them at their hotel by the Lufthansa, Germany's premier commercial flying organization. Brock elicited applause from the officers when upon being asked what baggage he had brought with him on the record flight, he pulled out a toothbrush and a comb from his vest pocket.

Despite the earliness of the hour, a great crowd assembled at the airfield to see the start. The fliers were of Interest were greeted with a cheer from the assemblage which included many Americans and the plane was again off on its luxurious flight.

So much activity was exhibited that scores of automobiles parked in the field near the runway expecting a momentary hop off.

London Aug 30 The effort of two Canadian attempts to span the Atlantic ocean to possibly fighter to the capital of the British Empire seemed likely [illegible] fair upon favorable weather reports with the possibility of a hop for the hero causing increased interest.

Lt Schlee editor of the Detroit Wireless and Phil S Wood navigator hoped to be able to take off about 6 o'clock this afternoon [illegible] to Windsor flight.

Capt Jerry Dalle and Lieut James Metcalf crew of the Sir John Carling who were forced back to the Quebec City by bad weather over the Atlantic on their first attempt to span the Atlantic to London Eng. were ready to start again as soon as conditions permitted.

Coup Been to Debate

The London to London flyers and their Stinson Detroiter monoplane were the subjects of a heated debate in the city council last night when Alderman W P Gerrard said that the support of the council be withdrawn.

It was intimated that the plane might not have sufficient gasoline capacity to carry it to London Eng. and the finance committee of the council recommended that the sponsors of the flight permit a landing at Lower Harbor for refueling if necessary.

U. S. STEEL BOARD TO NAME CHAIRMAN

Much Speculation on Likely Successor to Elbert H. Gary

New York, Aug 30—Who will become America's "steel king" succeeding the late Elbert H Gary?

In Wall Street where that question is today arousing no little speculation, seven names are being prominently mentioned as "possibilities" for the big job of chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corp. If a chairman of the board is eventually selected. There is indeed, a persistent report that no successor will be named, that the position will be purposely left unfilled and that James A Farrell, president of the corporation, and J P Morgan, will be the "big guns" in the future affairs of the company.

If, however, a successor to Gary is chosen, the belief in Wall Street is that he will be one of the following:

President Farrell, Myron C. Taylor, Nathan L. Miller, Pierre Du Pont, William J Filbert, Dwight Morrow; John J. Raskob.

The board of directors of the United States Steel Corp will meet this afternoon and may select a temporary chairman of the board.

Levine Forgets Solo Trip In Hurry To Contract Pilot, Wife Pays Drouhin Off and Has Own Plans For Charlie

LONDON, Aug 30 — Apparently abandoning his plan to fly back to America with Maurice Drouhin famous French aviator, Charles A. Levine, New York millionaire, was up bright and early today rushing arrangements for a return flight in company with an English pilot.

Levine, who startled Paris and London yesterday by piloting the trans-atlantic monoplane Columbia across the English Channel alone, and landing at the Croydon Flying Field while ambulances and the fire department waited fearing he could bring the craft to grief, planned to confer later today with a number of British pilots. He employed Capt. W G Hinchcliffe and the two took the plane to Cranwell Field late today.

Levine appeared considerably elated today over his successful flight across the channel, which, incidentally, was the first time he had ever handled a plane alone.

Levine intimated that he might attempt the return flight alone.

"I am beginning to think I am so good that I will not need a pilot for the trip home" he said.

For Best Interest

"I brought Miss Columbia to London because I believed it to be in the best interests of the flight," he said. "I saw no prospect of getting out of Paris under present conditions. When the reports I have been receiving from British and American meteorological services showed me that conditions were right for the hop-off, I suggested to Drouhin that we start. But he declined, saying that French weather reports showed that the weather was unfavorable."

Levine added that he considered he had made a mistake in signing for a trans-atlantic flight with a pilot with whom he could not converse. Levine speaks no French and Drouhin no English.

Commenting regarding his spectacular solo flight which ended only after two commercial pilots went up and showed him how to land, Levine said:

Forget Stabilizer

"This was my first flight all alone. I enjoyed myself very much. I guess I scared them out at Croydon when I was landing. I forgot to adjust the stabilizer which made the plane nose lower and I came down too fast.

London had far from recovered today from the effects of Levine's melodramatic chase of Capt. Brohin newspapers and all other reports outside indicate that the world's interest in Levine's escapade

UNION COUNTY DEBT REDUCED

Substantial Decrease Shown in Financial Report of Auditor

Marysville Aug 30—Brief but detailed statements of the financial condition of the county as shown in the report of the auditor have been published by County Auditor Elbert Dille. The county itself owes no bonded indebtedness but the villages of the county, the schools and school districts have a bonded indebtedness of $1,292,000 of which $1,000,000 is owed by the school districts part of which is due in 1928.

The fact that Union County has such a small sum despite the large mileage of roads built in recent years is due to the fact that the county has been paying about one half each year which have been paid off regularly as they fell due. The entire bonded indebtedness of the villages of the county is less than that of Marysville 10 years ago. Marysville has a much greater indebtedness at the present time.

REPORT CORN BORER SPREADS IN COUNTY

Marysville Aug 30—According to reports from the State Department of Agriculture at Columbus, practically all of Union County is now covered by corn borer infestation. It is feared that the blight has covered all of Delaware County and is extending into Franklin county.

No steps of any importance have been taken to prevent the spread in this county because of the fact that the quarantine lines were established on the Marion and Hardin County border lines and Union County farmers considered themselves as safe from the blight for the present at least. Action to be taken to prevent the spread in all parts of the county will be dependent on findings at government laboratories.

NATIONAL DOUBLES

Tournament To Get Under Way Today Following Postponement

Longwood Cricket Club Brookline Mass Aug 30—Already a day behind schedule because of rain, play in the men's national doubles tournament with 24 teams entered was to get under way this afternoon

The tournament this season holds a new interest in the fact that a new championship team will be crowned to take the place of the famous Richards Williams pair Richards' conversion to the professional ranks forced Williams to seek another partner so he teamed up with William M Johnston

Then there is the Davis cup team of Tilden Hunter not to mention Cochet Brugnon and Lacoste Borotra, the French Davis cup quartet

MANSFIELD TO GET JUMP ON OTHER TEAMS

Coach Bliss Mansfield Mansfield High's best elevens in years is getting the jump on all Ohio League rivals when it is expected to get under way with practice scheduled for Monday afternoon

Mansfield will open the season at Massillon and will play the Tigers the N C Day will follow with last year's winners Practice sessions will be held daily

Harding Hicks the 1926 captain will be available but Hicks suffered an injury last year Dan although he was a regular last year has not been made definite why we don't expect to see any of the boys chasing the pigskin for a week We've heard nothing at all from outside like football

Jesse Bobby Rae quarterback was in the city the other day and denies has again disappeared Mansfield's personal hues of walking a beat and rangers in an effort to find out will be the football season will get a go here we don't care nothing Nevertheless a hot file is available and school gets Tuesday

Some Back But—

While some of the former stars back from their summer jobs will reach for the cage outfit in the several of those who have left to take up will let nothing to hold summer boys health to and will get out to work up to the last minute

It was rumored a few weeks ago that football practice would start Sept 1 but that idea evidently all wrong How Bobby could ever hope to get candidates together before the first day of school is beyond comprehension It just is not to be done

That means that football practice cannot possible start before next Tuesday But when it does watch for the workouts Bobby has been attending school at Superior Wis this summer and will have plenty of new points gathered from past masters of the game He'll have six letter men to work with together with about 10 others— If all that's rumored comes true

So football fans who have been favored with ideal and weather during the last month will have to wait another week or so before seeing what Harding will have this year in the line of a representative body of pigskin chasers

NEW MAP IS ISSUED HERE

All Farms, Highways and Villages Shown on Latest Plat

A new map, showing the location of every farm as well as all of the roadways and villages of Marion County, has been designed by Lloyd E. Underwood, deputy county surveyor.

The new map is the first of its kind to be drawn of Marion County since April 1, 1907. Along with separate drawings of each of the townships, all of which are the work of Underwood, the maps will be placed on sale in the near future.

Underwood has been at work on the maps for the last three years, doing most of the drawing during his leisure time at his home. Three small copies of the township maps are being made by the H. C. Cloyd Co., Columbus, and will appear in this city in a few days.

Farms Divided

The division of the farms of 1907 to several smaller allotments is probably the greatest change noted on the new map of Marion County designed by Underwood. A majority of the Marion County farms of today are less than 100 acres while in the year of 1907, a single farm covered several hundred acres.

Underwood has placed on his map all of the national, state and county roads designated by the numbers. Total mileage of roads in the county is 802 miles, according to the map.

Of the total number, Marion County has about 200.7 miles of unimproved roads. Macadam roads in the county total 253.10 miles while 84.1 miles are gravel.

425 Square Miles

Marion County has an area of 425 square miles or about 272,000 acres. The greatest distance east and west is 29 miles and north and south is 18½ miles.

No changes have been made in the boundaries of the various townships of the county in the period since the designing of the last map in 1907. The city boundaries have only changed slightly. The most definite change was made in the eastern boundary which was formerly at Grand-av. and is now just below Madison-av.

CONDITION FAIR

Eugene Waller, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Waller, 887 Wood-st, underwent an operation for bowel obstruction last night at City Hospital. His condition is reported to be fair.

Seventy-five young Marion women have been entered in the "Miss Marion" campaign being conducted here as a benefit by members of the Bird-Mc-Cunnis Post, No. 102, American Legion. The contest is still open to nominations.

The petitions were verified by persons [illegible] They found that [illegible] were duplicated [illegible] according to the A. W. Bell [illegible] election board.

Approximately 2,800 names [illegible] signed the petition in Marion County including the [illegible]. The [illegible] board of elections will send the petitions to the secretary of state where the decision as to whether the referendum will be placed on the November ballot will be announced in the near future.

Should other counties of the state respond to the proposed change in the chiropractic law as did Marion it is believed that the adjustment will be on the ballot for the approval of the people in November. Although only 2,100 signers were obtained only 1,000 were necessary to pledge this county to support the bill, according to the secretary of state.

Clerks at the board of election offices during the past two weeks have been checking the referendum petitions of the Marshall bill, which have more than 500 signers.

BUILDING AND LOAN RESOURCES INCREASE

$1,127,775.15 Added in Marion County in 12 Months, League Records Show

Building and loan resources in Marion County increased $1,127,775.15 during the last 12 months according to figures just issued through the Ohio Building Association League by J. W. Launchbill, state superintendent of building and loan associations.

The five building and loan associations in Marion County now have total resources of $9,758,358.51. During the last year these institutions loaned approximately $3,000,000 on first mortgage securities on real estate and handled approximately $19,000,000 without the loss of a dollar to any depositor.

Building and loan associations in Ohio during the same period gained $108,817,000 making their total resources $1,041,000,000. "There was not a single building and loan failure among the 853 companies operating in Ohio last year," according to Mr. Launchbill's report. In his statement, Superintendent Launchbill says that this record for safety was unexcelled by any other financial group in the country.

The past year was one of the most successful in the history of Ohio building and loan companies. The gain in resources was the second largest ever made, and these institutions helped to finance 55,000 new homes. The report declares that Ohio building and loan companies are in better financial shape now than at any other time during the past ten years. At present most companies have sufficient funds on hand to meet all demands for home financing money.

Ohio building and loan companies have 2,000,000 borrowers and depositors. Mr. Launchbill pointed out that one out of every two families in the state was a building and loan patron and that 10,000 Ohio business men were serving as directors of these institutions.

Small Earnings

Despite the fact that their freight traffic increased three per cent in the first six months of 1927 over the same period in 1926, American railroads earned barely 4.5 per cent upon their investment, a report published recently in the Railway Data' states.

Higher wages granted various classes of railway employes and steady increases in taxes were important factors in bringing about this result, it is said.

CLUB PAYS TRIBUTE TO JOSIAH BINDLEY

Rotarians Dedicate Luncheon Hour to Memorial Service for Former President

Members of the Marion Rotary Club of their luncheon at H. C. Harding restaurant dedicated that part of the luncheon hour usually devoted to the entertainment of the members to a memorial meeting, for Josiah Bindley, former president of the club, whose death occurred at his home on E. Center st. last Friday night and whose funeral was held yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, who had been chosen to deliver the eulogy of the former president, paid a glowing tribute to the unselfish character of Mr. Bindley. Telling of the generosity he had always shown both in giving of his time and of his finances in the development of any project which might serve to make Marion a better city, or the life of some girl or boy brighter.

Friend of Children

He stressed the active part taken by Mr. Bindley in the crippled children's movement which is fostered by the club and the fine work accomplished as a result of the organization. "Josh Bindley's death will not only be felt keenly by the Rotary Club but the entire community as well," Dr. Sawyer declared.

The following resolutions, prepared and presented by I. A. Culp were adopted by the club:

"Whereas, The city of Marion for two score years or more was honored by the citizenship and business activities of Josiah Bindley, a man of sterling character, aggressive civic pride and loyalty, and of a patriotic spirit unexcelled, being foremost always in every civic enterprise, giving freely in an unstinted manner of his time and money up to all occasions for the advancement of civic pride and unselfish interest of the city, and

"Whereas, In the loss of these splendid attributes of character, serious before the entire membership of the city of Marion a high example of business integrity, sterling character and personal optimism, observed and admired by all, has fallen, as it were, and in fact, impressing itself upon all with whom he came in contact, our friend and fellow fraternal member, himself a credit to this community, inspiring many people having closest to thereof, be

Be it resolved that in the death of Josiah Bindley the city of Marion has lost a valuable citizen whose energy and enterprise throughout the years of his business activities contributed largely to the growth and development of the city to its present high plane among the municipalities of Ohio, and that the club pride he may feel at all times will be cherished as a heritage of membership of his fellow business men and further

Be it resolved by the Marion Rotary club in the passing of Josiah Bindley, a charter member and former president of the club, the city has lost one of its most highly esteemed and loyal citizens, one whose cheerful smile and warm hand clasp will be sadly missed, and whose vacant place in our club will be a constant reminder to every Rotarian of our loss as well as of the bravery and fortitude of life as it was the inspiration of the life that is gone will be to all of us a blessing that we will cherish in our hearts through all the days and years to come, and further

Resolved that a copy of these resolutions be presented to the bereaved family as a token of the high esteem in which the late Josiah Bindley, a member of long standing, was held by his fellow members of the club.

We're not a bit surprised at the determination of Mr Coolidge to quit the presidency Where is there any place about the White House grounds to ride a bucking broncho

It should not be held against England that a United States flag was torn to bits by a mob in Trafalgar square Sunday It is very probable that the anarchists and communistic engaged in the demonstration hate England even more than they do us

One of the main streets of Saratov where the headquarters of the American relief administration of 1921 were located has been named Sacco and Vanzetti The Russian bolsheviki will never forgive us for saving the lives of scores of thousands of Russian lives while they were engaged in wiping out hundreds of thousands

There's this to be said for Attorney General Turner's charge that the Anti Saloon league and the public utilities run the general assembly and thus the state There's a lot of mighty strong contributory evidence to substantiate his charge

We are glad to note that Congressman Brooks Fletcher approves the plan suggested a week or two ago by the Star of placing additional markers on such stretches of the Lincoln and Harding highways as have been made parts of United States route No 30 Although we can not claim that the idea was original with us as it has already been utilized by at least one eastern state to maintain the identities of its named highways and had previously been recommended by our state highway commissioner But no matter whose the plan it is a good one and two many Ohioans who live along either highway can not get behind it

Dropping the Drinkers.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman who has succeeded General Andrews in charge of the enforcement of the prohibition law says he proposes to weed out from the force on which is committed the execution of the law such officers as drink and have it handled by teetotalers He is quoted as saying

"I don't think a man who publicly drinks ought to be in the prohibition bureau as an enforcement officer

We don't want our prohibition officers seen drinking It is bad for the service Wherever we find an inefficient incompetent prohibition agent, or one addicted to the use of intoxicating liquor we are letting him out

Mr Lowman is unfortunate in his language for judging by the paragraphs quoted it might be taken that he has no objection to officers who drink but simply to those who drink in public Let us not be captious however over his choice of words but rather judge his meaning from an expressed ambition on his part to have the law handled by a force of teetotalers

And why not? Why should the law be handled by its enemies by those who make a practice of breaking it? Of course there's the old saying that it takes a thief to catch a thief but the fallacy of the saying must have been apparent to the one first uttering it In any event it is now recognized as an absurdity but no more of an absurdity than that drinkers of alcoholic liquors can best enforce the prohibition law

The assistant secretary's move is one in the right direction The prohibition law like any law, should be entrusted for enforcement to law abiding citizens and not to law breakers Drinkers should be dropped from the force So should the thug element the element given to trickery the element which enlists men to drink or to hoodlum the crook element and every other element which has worked to bring the law into disrepute.

Coming Increase in Shoe Prices.

We are told that the price of shoes is advanced and the reason given is the increased cost of leather And why the increase Less meat Because people are eating vegetables and fewer are being killed Less beef cattle are killed and hides are scarcer

Of course there is the usual percentage profiteer who will grab any excuse for a price raise and will be in no hurry to laugh when told that shoes are going up because of a scarcity of hides Increases in the price will hit consumers as the skins will but when hides were a long way from the market he pays for shoes didn't drop but if so they were a little higher

The explanation of the manufacturers of this kind is not to the liking of everybody who goes into shoes but the hide of one cow three or possibly four years ago I may be the hide of other Some years ago the war raising ended so the explanation goes the leather industry was terribly overstocked with hides so much overstocked that many tanners had to suffer great loss and some were forced out of business There was no demand for their product and so the tanners stopped tanning save on orders This caused the price of raw hides to fall Having been stung once the tanners have been reluctant to stock up again and it is said today that no tanning is done save to fill orders The result in this change of method was that the stock of leather became depleted and now when there is an increased demand for leather there is no leather stock adequate to the meeting of the demand

The explanation sounds good and it may be an accurate statement of fact but it's hard to see how the shoe manufacturers can ask dealers much of an advance on shoes such as are worn by the average citizen of Marion We believe we are safe in saying that the only part of the beef hide which goes into the shoes the average citizen wears is that which is used in the soles Most shoes worn in Marion have kid or calf or cordovan or cloth uppers The cowhide boot is a thing of the past hereabouts and few shoes one sees upon our streets are made of cowhide

Thus the extra cost of the leather in the sole is all that the shoe manufacturers have upon which to base the explanation they offer for the announced increased prices soon to come

There is just one ray of hope It is admitted that the leather stock of the country is now at its lowest mark There is no question of an overstock There is a demand for hides which is increasing Possibly if we switch back to a beef diet such a stock of leather may accumulate in four or five years that the prices will take a drop The drawback about this plan is that if we eat more beef the prices of beef may rise and we will find ourselves paying out dollars to save pennies

Any way we look at the thing it's a problem to us consumers

It is difficult for foreign visitors to understand Lord Eustace Percy told the world recently that the minister of education for England and Wales is not allowed to poke his nose inside the doors of any university in this country We very much fear that Sir Eustace is one of those old fogies who cling to the idea that the purpose of universities is to educate

General Carlos Salgado is said to feel that $10 a gun and five cents a cartridge of forced by the Nicaraguan government to him and his eighty followers for surrendering their arms and giving up their brigandage is not sufficiently substantial recognition of one who has been termed a great patriot —by the ex of our government up here in the United States

Having engaged in a street fist fight in Paris Saturday Charles A Lacing flew his Columbia to London Monday announcing upon his arrival there that he was through with Frenchmen and French airdromes Let us hope that he will stick to that declaration It is a matter for regret that he ever included France in his European itinerary He is not precisely of that diplomatic temperament which has made his presence in Paris a matter for congratulation to the United States

At the suggestion of the Los Angeles chamber of commerce the theatrical manager who made it has withdrawn the proffer of $10 000 for an aeroplane flight from Los Angeles to Tokio which is as it should be It is unthinkable that people should be offered prizes to commit suicide

Four members of an Urbana family were poisoned and made seriously ill as the result of drinking coffee made from a sample package tossed upon their doorstep during a recent distribution of coffee samples in that city The moral of this Urbana story is that no one under any circumstances should use a sample of any foodstuff thus distributed and the will apply with almost equal force to face powders and lotions

"I Fight Fanaticism," Is Statement of Highest Law Official in Hoosier State

TWO ATTORNEYS PROMINENT IN INDIANA POLITICAL AND MUNICIPAL CRITICISM. ATTORNEY GENERAL TOP AND BELOW ALVAH J. RUCKER WHO AS LEGAL ADVISOR TO A GROUP IN COUNCIL DREW UP THE IMPEACHMENT RESOLUTION TO OUST MAYOR DUVALL OF INDIANAPOLIS

By ROSCOE WITT

TWO of the most interesting personalities in Indiana political and social affairs, Chief Justice of Indiana appointed by Mayor John L. Duvall and drew up the impeachment resolution that not only cost the mayor his job but also the governorship and the political career of Arthur Gilliom, state attorney general.

In fact when both factions of the Republican powwow in Indiana Democratic politics is said to have dominated the state legislature only to the extent that he sustained or rejected the recommendations of Arthur Gilliom for the attorney generalship. With the Stephenson faction in the regular Republican organization with floating control.

Despite bitter opposition Gilliom won the election although he pointed out the matter. Ivan was behind the ticket. Where there were primary votes to 200,000 votes I received only 4 votes. You see I was bitterly attacked by Stephenson and the regular Republican and was defeated.

Gilliom's Letter to Governor

Although early Gilliom's administration has been marked by frequent clashes with the Anti-Saloon League of Indiana, pertaining him to support a change in the state beverage laws, which would be unethical legislation. In this letter he remained the governor that while the governor would have had requested Gilliom to claim Right of Privilege, Gilliom wrote further that he had made a study of the facts and it was necessary of Mrs. Jackson's life was in danger.

Recently Gilliom has been attacked by the Rev. Edward S. Shumaker of Greencastle of the Indiana Anti-Saloon League because of his annual report of the American Issues which Gilliom asserts the superintendent by excluding legal case decisions of the state supreme court has endeavored to imply that both by rendering certain opinions Gilliom brought upon court proceedings against Shumaker and the court finding him guilty fined him $200 and sentenced him to serve 60 days at the Indiana state penal farm. The case has since been appealed to United States supreme court.

Shumaker's attorneys assert no contempt of the state supreme court was committed and that their client is being persecuted for his free speech.

What Gilliom Says

Attorney General Gilliom in speaking of the Shumaker case says he objects to the "fanaticism" which would deny persons from the privileges that he calls that he opposes domination by any one minority group.

"I am a dry myself but I am opposed to fanaticism of any within the organization ranks" he declares.

And he adds "Some day we shall have a government ruled entirely by groups

PARTY GOWNS FEATURE RUFFLES

FOR the slim young thing nothing is quite so delightful as the fluffy, ruffly dress for the party apparel, at any rate. The season's taste in evening dress ranges all the way from the slender, straight frock of matchless simplicity in shining satin, velvet or metal cloth, to the wide skirted frocks with skirts a mass of ruffles.

Two of the frocks of this type are pictured, worn by Hope Hampton. On the left a square cut skirt with deep points on the sides illustrates two of the season's accented points, the flare or drape that is an integral part of the shirt, and the uneven hem. The numerous ruffles are made of pink tulle combined with a lace bodice. A huge ribbon sash and flowers finish the waistline.

Just as elaborate is the dress on the right. Pink tulle is again the medium.

In this case the bodice is cut long with deep, uneven scallops where the tulle ruffles are set on. Gold embroidery, silk rosebuds, pink and gold make and trim the bodice. The sleeves, composed of tulle ruffles, extend from the elbows to the wrists.

The Game of Match-Tossing

It is the deadliest of gambling games — this common American habit of tossing firebrands, in the shape of lighted matches.

They land in waste-baskets, amongst draperies, and in equally dangerous places. The fires they kindle destroy lives and property; and these fires frequently spread, to the damage of innocent parties.

Do not neglect full fire insurance, as your protection against match-tossing neighbors. Call us.

Flora's bedroom. "Now, one ... at a ... chaperone ... until I get her walked up, if you want to ... be groomed at the usual ... Matter of life and death," he elaborated.

"I won't ... in there. The girl ... shook her head violently.

"What a sweet tempered angel Vera must be to ... them," Jerry chuckled to himself as he flung open the door. "Wake up, Flora!"

If he had not known that the woman on the pretty little painted bed could be no other than Flora Cartwright, he would not have recognized her. Her head that jerked up from the pillow was encased in a tights fitted cream net cap, to protect the marcel wave in her tinted golden bob from being mussed against the pillows. A thick clay strata reeled her face like a mask, and fighting during the hours of sleep to keep a double chin at bay.

Jerry Macklyn. Flora shrieked, reaching for the sheet with which to cover her face. She would rather have died than to have Jerry Macklyn or any other man catch her in that plight. "Get out, or my goons instantly!"

But I tell you Flora, Vee-Vee has been kidnapped," Jerry retorted, unless he means to rise to his good natured breast. "I don't give a damn how you look now—"

"Get out and let me fix up my face."

Flora pleaded. "I'll be sure if the world is going to end I won't talk to you looking like this."

Jerry sat down to her dressing table, helped up a handful of jars and bottles, flung them upon Flora's bed, then stepped into the bathroom to get her a towel.

"Now, wash off that cold cream and drink some water, if you just have to," he ordered, drawing up a chair to the bedside. "I have a lot more while you put on the war paint. Now listen."

As Flora turned to face him, as far from him as possible while she applied vanishing cream, then a thick coating of powder, and then busied herself with rouge compact and lipstick, Jerry told her in as few words as possible the facts of Vee Vee's flight.

"So that's why Vee Vee reminded me of Vivian Crandall!" Flora interrupted. "I never thought of it before with that Crandall girl's picture in all the papers. What a relief it is now she must have been living with everyone treating her like a princess and a 40 million dollar heiress. Some people have all the luck. She's lucky!"

"What a heartless little wretch you are," Jerry exploded. "Here's your pal's kidnaped by two masked men and taken God knows where to be held for ransom and you have the nerve to envy the girl."

"Dear Jerry," Flora implored, turning her tearfully made up face to him with a crafty gleam in her tragic eyes. "Now, see what we are going to do. I wonder if the reporters will mind us if we go now, she mused, the faraway look of a woman who is mentally rearranging her wardrobe coming into her eyes.

"Good Lord, Flora, think of what you're saying! Don't you see that Vee Vee's abduction was to ruin the Crandalls, to get their daughter out of the way, has been kidnaped. But then it occurred to me that when the papers get hold of the news and the kidnapers read it as we may be sure they would, Vee Vee would be at the mercy of a pair of brutes that would think nothing of killing her out of revenge for having tricked them into committing a useless crime. Is that clear?"

Too clear an infantile mind can grasp that obvious truth. Flora stared at Jerry. Then her eyes became clouded with genuine worry and bewilderment. "I don't see what we can do, Jerry, dear. After all she got herself out of this ridiculous scrape—"

"No she didn't," Jerry contradicted her vehemently. "I did. I told you she had no one—but neither did I—that I was remodeling her to look like Vivian Crandall's portrait. If Stafford hadn't already quit, I'd have him tuck it away in a picture in his desk without a caption on it. But there's no use crying over what's been done. We've got to think of a way out for the present."

"You say her name—Vee Vee's—will come out in the papers. If it's proved that the people she worked with at Peach Bloom will know won't they? What's to keep them for running to the newspapers or the police with the facts or as much of the truth as they can figure out for themselves?"

"Smart girl!" Jerry remarked grudgingly. "I'd already thought of that. It certainly looks like the cat's out of the bag, whether we want it to be or not. A feeble plan occurs to me, however. Have you anything to suggest?"

"No," Flora shook her marcelled head. "If there is any way in the world to keep the Crandalls believing that Vee Vee is their daughter they will of course move heaven and earth to get her, for any sum to ransom her when the kidnapers make their demands."

"But it's plain sunk dishonesty to let them pay ransom for a girl we know is not their daughter. We'd be guilty of some sort of crime ourselves. I suppose in keeping quiet. But—it's her life against their money, and I'll be damned if I can worry a lot about their money when Vee Vee's life is at stake. Of course there is another angle. I want to protect Vee Vee from scandal, if I can keep the true story out of the papers—"

"You're in love with Vee Vee, Jerry," Flora asked softly, regret in her tone.

"You bet I am," Jerry almost shouted at her. "I don't care what she's done or what scandal breaks over her head. I love her and I'll stick by her. One thing I can do if the worst comes to worst—I can give out interviews to all the papers telling them how the whole thing happened and taking the blame on myself. It is my fault, as admitted gloomily. "Have I your permission as her nearest kin, to do my thing I think is best."

"Of course, Jerry dear," Flora said softly, laying Jerry's head against her cheek. "Don't forget, though, she added practically, "that if this thing comes out, you'll lose your job with Peach Bloom and be a marked man in New York—a laughing stock, probably."

"I'm not thinking of myself," Jerry told her fiercely. "If you think Vee-Vee has a better chance to get away from the kidnapers if they know who she really is, I'll take right down to police headquarters and tell the whole story. All I'm thinking of is Vee Vee."

"Let's see," Flora mused, pressing her fingers into her temples. "It is so hard to think before one has had one's coffee. If the kidnapers read the story in the papers what would their reaction be? They'd be as sore as boiled owls, wouldn't they? All their hard work for nothing! And as guilty of kidnaping as if they'd really made away with an heiress. Same crime, same punishment if caught. Vee Vee could furnish police with their descriptions. So could Vivian Crandall if there'd been luck enough to have captured the real heiress."

"But before they turned Vivian loose they would have lots of money to make a getaway, also Vivian's promise not to peach on them. I believe that's the word. But with Vee Vee it would be a different story. No ransom money you see, to help them get away. Two men with a girl in their power hidden safely away where no one could interfere. A beautiful girl," she emphasized her blue eyes very keen as she worked out her argument. "They wouldn't dare harm the real Vivian Crandall but what do you suppose they would do to a penniless imposter whom they had every reason to hate? Murder would only be the last act of the tragedy, Jerry."

"Oh, Lord!" Jerry groaned sweat beading in forehead. "I'm going to do the one thing that's left for me to do, Flora. And I won't tell you what it is for fear it won't work. Did out your fat praying, Flora? Well now's a good time to begin."

On his way to the offices of the Peach Bloom Cosmetics Company Jerry Macklyn bought and scanned hastily the early editions of the afternoon papers all of which were devoting their front pages to the sensational story of the Crandall kidnaping. He learned that Prince Ivan Polaski was also missing from his hotel, that police had discovered traces of an airplane landing and taking off in a lonely field near the road where the sedan used by the abductors had been abandoned; that late motorists had heard the faint roar of an airplane motor far overhead at about the time the supposed Vivian Crandall was being spirited away.

There was not a word in the papers to indicate that an effort would be made to discover why Vivian Crandall had chosen to register at the Minnetonka as Vera Victoria Cameron. The name was accepted as an alias, chosen by the heiress because the initials corresponded with her own.

Jerry drew a deep sigh of relief, but he knew that he and Vee-Vee were in the center of a volcano that might erupt at any minute. He arrived at the office at 10 minutes of nine. Apparently an employe had been trying to win promotion by punching the clock ahead of the official nine o'clock opening time, for he saw no one, until even an office boy. He was charging up and down the floor when Rose-Mary put a hand upon his arm, causing him to whirl upon her, his face distorted with rage.

"Oh, Jerry!" I mean Mr. Macklyn! Who do you think I saw this morning? Vee Vee! And I've just seen the papers! That Vivian Crandall has been doing her nails!" Oh, I'm just about to die, I'm so excited!
